Year of Anno Domini Our Lord

Anno Domini is the theme for the yearbook this year. It is Latin, and means "the year of our Lord." This phrase became common in the early Christian era, showing time as being measured from the birth of our Heavenly King, not an earthly king.

How does Anno Domini tie into this school year? Well, the early Christians decided that God should be the main focus of life, going so far as to have every year dedicated to Him. Like them, we must keep our main focus on God and live each year for the Lord.

"Fort Flagler—a uniting experience." —Jarrod Lima

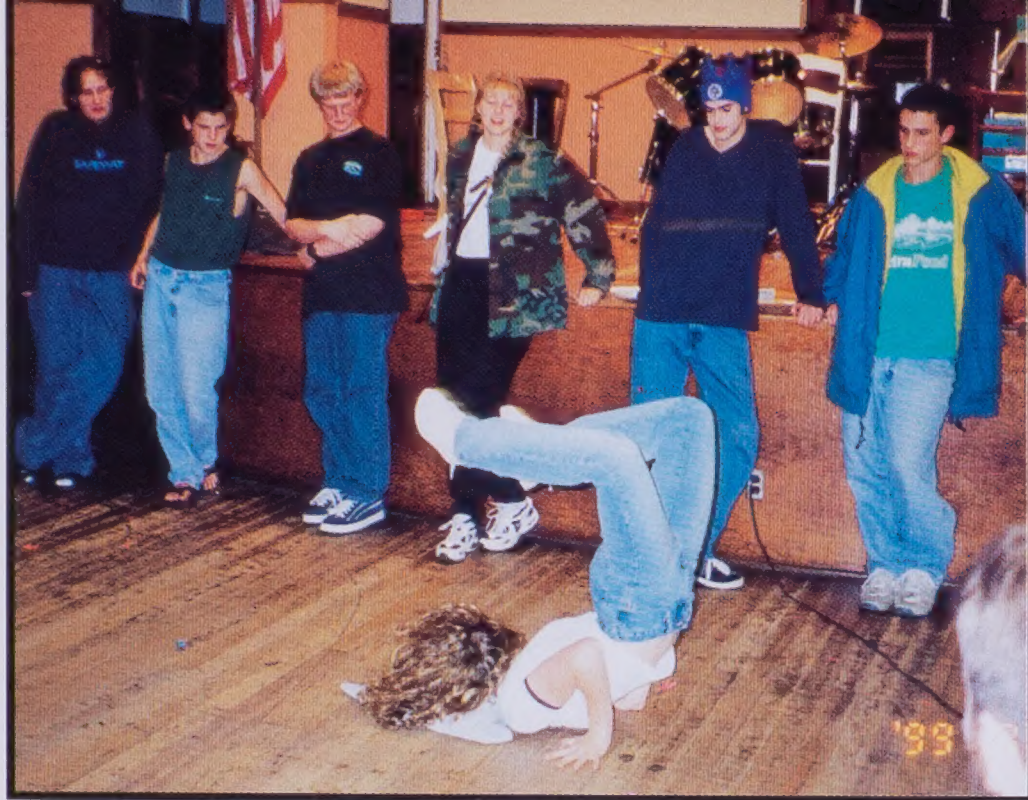

Traditionally the senior class has a group photo taken at the camp during the senior retreat; this year, however, the group at Ft. Flagler was incomplete. Travis Allen, who very much wanted to join his class for the weekend, had to stay in the hospital instead. In their desire to include Travis, the class of 2000 had three separate class photos taken. In the picture below Heather Sandvik holds a photo of Travis. In the photo to the right, the seniors gathered around Travis' name spelled out in driftwood on the beach. --Photo by J. McKey

Just before the communion service at Ft. Flagler, Pastor Bill Roberts speaks to the seniors, who are clustered in groups for the "feeding of the 5000 by the sea." --Photo by J. McKey

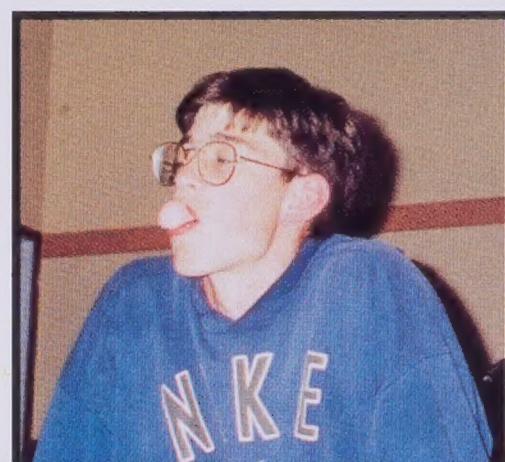

While votes were counted, the seniors provided impromptu entertainment. Shawna Bailey, Matthew Sandvik, Greg Thoman, Heidi Gruzenksy, Jonathan Anthes and Jarrod Lima stand by as Lisa McGill somersaults across the meeting house floor. --Photo by E. Sharp

Academics. Not exactly everyone's favorite part of school. Wouldn't it be nice if we could come to school and just do the extracurricular activities and have fun with our friends? The constant struggle of keeping grades up is a big stress for everyone, but our classes are teaching us more than just a subject.

When our teachers give us huge projects and difficult assignments, we are subconsciously learning perseverance, dedication and the satisfaction that comes with hard work. Shakespeare may never fit into the scheme of our lives, we may never use Algebra II while grocery shopping, and who needs auto mechanics with "Triple A"? Even so, there is more to these classes than meets the eye. We are developing traits that will stay with us the rest of our lives.

Activities Celeritas

When you are old and look back on your high school years, what is it that you'll remember? Will it be the activities on the following pages? Outreach options, religious services, working? Probably not, at least not in themselves, but maybe you will remember the people--you and your friends slacking off in the ASB office or the near disaster you had on a banquet date. What about the new friends you found on your tour through Europe or on your mission trip? Will you remember them? We hope so. High school is all about becoming involved. That's why we have activities where you can get out and meet people, whether it's during a church service or play practice. Mmmmm. Activities.

Organizations

Sodalitas

Great works are performed not by strength but by perseverance. — Johnson

Organizations are a fun part of Auburn. Our Casa Loma and Zeta Cappa throw awesome shindigs, Sylvan and Wind Ensemble get to play in the capitol rotunda and ASB busily plans activities all year long. Publications like Direct Connections and Rainier Vista are the headaches that plague other student leaders; everyone involved works hard on these time consuming and often thankless jobs. What makes it all worthwhile? It's feeling accomplishment and pride in your group, gaining confidence in yourself and becoming friends with someone you would not have met otherwise. We leave our comfort zone and do something new that we would not have done before. And I think we can all agree that a moving performance, a romantic banquet and a thought-provoking paper are worth all the hard work put into them.

"Give me an A! Give me another A! Give me another A!
What does that spell? Aaaaaah!!"

Sports games never seem to lose their allure. Everyone, at one time or another, has gone to a game and cheered (or cried, as the situation demanded). But sports are not about putting on a show. What most people don't see are the hours of running and seemingly pointless drills that athletes repeatedly endure. All this is not done for an audience. It is done because of the special bond that exists between teammates. It is something unique that can be neither replicated nor forgotten. It is the reason why you give more when you have nothing left to give, the reason why you play harder when you thought you were played out. This feeling of closeness, not the applause of fans, is the reason we play sports.

In Memory

Travis Lee Allen
July 20, 1981 - October 25, 1999

In spite of the devil's attempts to sever his relationship with Jesus, Travis maintained a steadfast faith; because of this faith, he was able to experience and share Jesus' incredible love, protective care, blessed assurance and comforting peace.

On a Friday evening in January 1999, Travis' doctor gave him the shocking and devastating news that he had acute lymphocytic leukemia. For ten long months Travis battled for his life.

Now, because Travis is gone, some would entertain the notion that the prayers of his friends and family were not realized and that Travis did not receive the miracle which we all so hoped for.

They would be very wrong.

Travis' life was a living miracle which continues to impact those who were touched by his faith. The prayers were answered. Travis fulfilled his mission on earth.

An accomplished harpist, Travis participated in the 1997 Christmas program held in the church.

*I want to meet you all in Heaven!
 Connect with Jesus and don't let go!
 If you weren't there,
 I'd be really bummed.
 —Travis Allen*

Brandon Kier and Alex Humbert unfurl the flag that Mr. Neumann arranged to fly at half-mast in honor of Travis.

"I used to ask, 'Why me? Why aren't all the prayers for healing being answered?' But Jesus has shown me a bigger picture, and now, when I'm tempted to ask, 'Why me?' I attack that question with another one. 'Why not me?' Maybe there have been people with leukemia who have gotten mad at God and given up on Him. If it can be a witness for God that demonstrates to others and to the watching universe that tragedy doesn't need to shake your trust or confidence in Him, then, Why not me?"

--Travis Allen, September 1999

Travis Allen was remembered with photos in the hall of the Administration Building, and in a special vespers held by the seniors.
